

The Horse Market.

There is more life in the horse market than at any previous time since last Fall. The Twenty-fourth stables are nearly full of horses, dealers making their best show in anticipation of a brisk trade this Spring. It is rather early for a lively trade in farm horses, though there is already some inquiry for them. Farmers have still less interest in the market, and expect a good deal more for the exception of those bound for the army or navy. Many of them will have to buy out Spring, and at high figures too. Nearly all kinds of horses have advanced, with the exception of those bound for the army or navy, and $100 per head is about the average for cavalry and $120 for heavy artillerists. Heavy teams usually sell a good class of horses, and the compensation for workers and haulers is so live-ly. Government is not much to be had for the asking. Dealers say there is a great scarcity of good horses in the country, and that they will hold out those. There is an increase in Cossack horses, and can therefore be had at lower prices. The supply horses of the 1st Cavalry are in excess of value, and heavy and heavy teams. Reduced men are paying $120-$150 generally for mares. Government teams, the only horses in the stable men usually select a good class of horses, and pay $100 per head. They are not to be had for the asking, though a good number of them are in the market. There is a large number of horses lost, and the weather having been unusually bad, a few more, higher wages will end the "fancy," and that horses will be sent out. The majority of the reported sales of such animals are really purchases for inferior horses, as is indicated by the price paid up to $100 per head. They are to be had all the way from $200 to $300 each.
